Domestic Animal Permit Holder (DAHP)

What is a DAHP?

Any person who buys or sells livestock (cattle, swine, horses, deer, camelids, sheep, goats or poultry) as a business practice, not as part of a breeding, feeding or dairy operation, is a dealer. (Agriculture and Markets Law, Section 90). By law, anyone who is a dealer, or who conducts an auction where livestock or sold, or who transports poultry must hold a Domestic Animal Health Permit (DAHP) granted by the commissioner. All permits are issued for a two year period and expire two years from the date of issue. A person who represents a buyer or seller in a transaction is also considered a dealer and complete records must be kept.

What species does it cover? cattle, swine, horses, deer, camelids, sheep, goats or poultry
