

New York Farm Directory Two-Year Update

The Department of Agriculture and Markets (AGM) launched the online Farm Directory in 2022 to help connect consumers to producers across the state and help strengthen the local food supply chain. Users can go directly to the Directory's website and use the search criteria (i.e. farm name, farm type, addresses, etc.) and any certifications that they may have (i.e. NYS Grown & Certified, Kosher, Halal, and Organic).

Section 16(52) of the New York State Agriculture and Markets Law, first enacted in 2021 and amended in 2022, required AGM to create a directory of every farm in New York State. The purpose of the Directory, as stated in the law, is to allow entities to access available products grown in New York State, strengthen New York agriculture, and support the environment, communities, small businesses, and local economies.

If you own a farm and want to participate, please visit the AGM's website and create your farm listing. If you are an existing user, please update your farm information to reflect any relevant changes or updates. Finally, if you own a farm and have not participated in the Directory or opted out, please do so by July 31st.

AGM provides the Farm Directory as a public service for informational purposes only. Reference to any specific product or entity does not constitute an endorsement or recommendation by AGM. The data is provided by individual farms as a representation of their own businesses, and AGM has not verified the information. AGM is not responsible for the content and accuracy of any farm information posted in the Directory and shall not be responsible for any reliance on such information. AGM understands that not every farm offers products to the public at the farm site, so each farm can indicate whether it is open to the public or if there are other ways to access their farm product. This might include listing a distributor, a brand name that the product is marketed under, or a specific consumer-facing website where the product can be purchased at a retail location. The information available on the Directory for each farm can be tailored to meet the individual needs of each business, and farmers will be able to update their information as desired.

Existing users can opt out after initially choosing to participate in the Directory by using their associated NY.gov ID, selecting the edit your farm option and choosing the delete button at the bottom of the page. If you run into issues and can't edit your farm information, you can reach out to the Farm Directory team at FarmDirectory@agriculture.ny.gov, or by calling us at (518) 485-1050.

Additionally, AGM is excited to invite farms and agribusinesses to build a profile and list their eligible products in the Nourish NY Approved Products Web Portal. This exciting opportunity makes products visible and searchable to all Nourish NY awardees (food banks, food pantries, and soup kitchens) and entities participating in other NYS product purchasing programs helping them identify approved New York grown agricultural products and value-added products. For more information, contact the Nourish NY team at NourishNY@agriculture.ny.gov, or visit the web at <https://agriculture.ny.gov/NourishNY>.
